

all the time. The trouble is that the old operatives have gone into other pursuits, and it is impossible to get hands enough. At present we are turning out about 100 dozen a day."

"How do you account for the change?"

"Well, you know when fashion runs to extremes, there is likely to be a violent reaction. Hoop skirts were driven out of fashion because the style was pushed to such an extreme. Hoops got to be four and five yards around in the style known as "tillers." A lady could hardly get into a church pew. When she sat down her dress ballooned out and took up the whole side of a street car. The papers all got to making fun of the fashion, and there was a reaction against hoop skirts. Another thing that had to do with it, I suppose, was the hard times. It took a great deal of fabric to cover those big skeleton tents, and there was a saving in adopting narrow skirts. Now tight dresses have been pushed to an extreme, and a reaction toward fuller dresses and the hoop is natural?"

"How does the new style compare with the old?" asked the reporter.

"Look at that!" said Mr. Bradley, pointing to a hoop skirt hanging from the ceiling. It was a great circular wire cage yards around. "Now look at this," said he, and he held up a slim, graceful skirt with hoops secured by broad tapes, and running about half way up. The old hoops ran up to 150 inches in circumference. The present style runs from 55 to 65 inches. Now, if the modistes do not push the style to excess and will keep the hoop skirt down to two yards in circumference, it will remain in use."

"Has there been much change in the manufacture of hoop skirts?"

"All the change in the world. It was in 1857 that hoop skirts first came into use. I remember the first article of the kind which were imported from Europe. They were cumbersome affairs, the hoops made of bamboo, cane or rattan. Iron was considered too heavy a material. Steel hoops were introduced by American makers. It was a long process to get the right quality of steel. If made too hard the steel would snap, and if too soft the hoop would bend in wear and lose its shape. Now the steel is so well tempered that the hoop skirt retains its shape and at the same time conforms to changes of attitude in the wear like a woven fabric. The weight of a skirt like that now coming into fashion is less than one-fourth of that of the old style of skirt, and the new skirt will wear four times as long as the old."

At Macy's, the sale of hoop skirts was reported to be increasing. "About a year ago," said the reporter's informant, "hoop skirts came into some demand in connection with a style of sailor waist and gathered skirts for young girls. But the ladies did not adopt it, and the demand proved transient. The indications now are that the hoop skirt will become fashionable again. The bustle seems to have paved the way for it. The bustle was gradually lengthened out from a hip piece until it extended the length of the skirt, and was like a hoop skirt bisected longitudinally. It was a small change to make some of the lower hoops of the bustle complete circles about the form. Soon the garment became half hoop and bustle, about ten steels going completely around, while the remainder were short half hoops, ending at the side tapes. The hoops keep the folds of the dress from falling if ungraceful, straight lines from the hips, where the dress is spread out by the bustle. At present the article in use is only half a hoop skirt, for the steels run only half way up in front, but the tendency is toward complete skirts again. The demand comes from the best class of customers, and in the last month or six weeks our sales have greatly increased."

At Arnold, Constable & Co.'s, the lady in charge of that department also reported an increasing demand for hoop skirts by fashionable ladies. The skirt is called for as an adjunct to the bustle, and is arranged with a lateral partition of tapes, so as to throw out the rear half circle of hoops and support the drapings and ornaments of the back of the skirts.

GREENWOOD, S. C., Jan. 27, 1880.

Dr. M. T. Hill: Dear Sir—Knowing the constituent elements of your HERPATIC PANACEA, I have used it in my practice with most gratifying results. I unhesitatingly recommend it as a reliable and valuable alternative and gentle cathartic. Its rapidly increasing popularity attests the value of its medicinal properties. Yours respectfully,

M. C. TAGGART, M. D.

As there has been considerable inquiry for Fellows' Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites among Physicians, a supply was ordered and is now in stock at the York Drug Store. There can also be found there McArthur's Hypophosphites, Camm's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites, Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, and Irish Moss, Maltine, Malt, plain and with Hypophosphites, and pure Cod Liver Oil. These are the acknowledged remedies for the treatment of consumption and all pulmonary and scrofulous diseases.

Southern Belle Smoking Tobacco at the York Drug Store, at 50 cents per pound. Good as Blackwell's Durham.

Believing, at the York Drug Store, that cleanliness is next to Godliness, they overstocked themselves on toilet and laundry Soaps. They are now closing out at "excursion rates." Call soon.

There is offering at the York Drug Store, under the "image and superscription" of the same, a Hair Restorer that looks like Hall's, smells like Hall's, put up in same sized bottles as Hall's, and if it does not give the same results as Hall's, money will be refunded for every bottle sold. Price 75 cents.

60 for Price. One box of Price's Yeast Gems costs ten cents; each box contains 10 cakes or costs ten cents; each cake contains 10 loaves of bread. The number of loaves of delicious bread made by each gem, multiplied by the total number of gems in a box, gives 60 loaves of delicious bread. So we may say 60 for Price as well as Jones. These Gems sold only at the York Drug Store.
